

Module 28: Making Business Decisions

Managers who make good business decisions often have a few key things in common.

Describe for each area what you have in common with Managers who make good business decisions:

They are emotionally intelligent:

They actively develop their business acumen:

They actively seek opportunities to provide leadership:

They find the right balance between caution and taking risks: